Interior Architect and Designer

Professional Profile

I am an Interior Architect and Designer based in Surrey, recently graduated from The Arts University Bournemouth, where I was studying for my degree in Interior Architecture and Design. I have a natural talent for drawing and design, which I have improved during my studies. After completing an intern-ship at Rebecca Hughes Interiors in London, I am keen to gain more experience within the field.

Rebecca Hughes Interiors

Feb-May 2016

London

During my studies I had the wonderful opportunity to work for Rebecca Hughes Interiors, a luxury high-end interior designers based in London.

I gained a wide variety of hands on experience and relished the opportunity to work directly with Rebecca and her design team on live projects. As well as exciting residential projects, I broadened my knowledge of current trends, designers, and suppliers, and acquired a range of methods and techniques that I still use daily.

Sailing Holidays

May-Sep 2016

Greece

In the summer of 2016 I decided to work abroad to enjoy my passion for sailing as well as gain further experience. I worked as an ambassador for the company greeting and caring for clients from their arrival, throughout their sail around the Ionian, to their departure.

It was an amazing experience that further improved my customer service and public speaking. I also became more flexible and resourceful, resolving some unlikely situations and being moved across Greece at a moments notice as required by the company.

The British Wildlife Centre

Apr 2013-Present

Surrey

Working part-time to support my studies, I am still employed in the visitor centre at the British Wildlife Centre, home to the finest collection of native British species in the world. The work consists of preparing food and drinks in the coffee shop, as well as working on the front desk for ticket and gift shop sales.

This is a fantastic job which requires excellent customer service, and leadership skills to train new staff and to work in a team to provide a professional and efficient service.
